

OSHA 10-Hour General Industry Training, October 7-8, 2008 at the OSHA Education Center in Manchester, NH.

There was a great turn-out for the OSHA 10-Hour General Industry Training. 25 participants from 10 different New Hampshire institutions attended and Brenda Freeland from Dartmouth College did an exceptional job presenting the required information. One participant said, “the the professional instructor’s passion and caring shined through, as did her experience”. Michael Blayney and Jason Angel from Dartmouth College, Alexis Sablock from the University of New Hampshire, and David Beard from OSHA; each presented a portion of the training and the participants really benefited from the their varied expertise. Brenda also created a question and answer game after each presentation and had two teams compete for a prize which really helped everyone retain the information and have some fun.

The OSHA 10 Hour Training really explained in detail the hazards present in general industry and the proper way to keep employees out of harms way. If you would like to view any of the presentations again they can be found at http://www.osha.gov/fso/ote/training/outreach/gi_outreach_tp.html. Many thanks are due to the OSHA Training Institute Education Center in Manchester for hosting this event.
